SPARK SPACE

The Spartanburg County Public Libraries is excited to announce the launch of its new makerspace – Spark Space. Makerspaces are creative, Do-it-yourself (DIY) spaces where people come together to tinker, create, design, build and experiment. The Spark Space offers opportunities for hands-on learning by providing access to emerging technology, tools, craft materials and more. This space is open to ages 12 and older.

Makerspaces encourage people to take what they've read in a book and apply that knowledge in real-time. SCPL'S makerspace is the first library makerspace in the Upstate and will provide patrons with free access to instruction-based learning as well as opportunities to create with emerging technologies, like 3-D printers.

The Spark Space will offer programs and equipment that support their seven maker modules -3D Printing, Analog to Digital Conversion, Crafting, Digital Creation, Sewing & Embroidery and Visual Art. For more information about the Spark Space, please contact Christina Fuller-Gregory, Makerspace Librarian at 864-596-3500 ext. 1227.
